AMERICANS TESTIFY TO BEING ASSAULTED AND ROBBED BY MEXICAN REBEL TROOPS

Testimony Shows That Taft's Warning to Americans to Get Out of Mexico Cause d Rebels to Threaten to Rob American Residents and Treat Them With Contempt.

as one of the prime movers of the revolution, a family named Ponce, another named Casar, Salazar and others. I knew of no Europeans or Americans who were concerned in its starting. Of course there were American soldiers of fortune, but they were in the ranks. "We lost many horses and a great number of cattle, and in exporting cattle we were forced to pay illegal tolls. Our losses would not exceed $50,000. I tried to talk Madero out of the export tax, but got no reduction."

O. "Was any demand made upon your company in New York for tribute?"

A. "No. I know very little about it, neither do I know whether or not it has been running the business. They have taken a great deal of fuel through here."

"Our properties are being destroyed all the time. The last report I had was that 1000 rebels are camped on the ranch."

Question—"How many states are in rebellion?"

A. "There are 15 states in rebellion and 15,000 men under arms. Zappala is in the south and Orozco in the north. Chihuahua is now under partial control of the federalists. There has been no change in their attitude toward the Americans."

No Honest Officers.

"An old friend of mine could not find two honest officers. He referred to Casas Grandes. He was a volunteer officer, and a federal official. I was a prisoner and fined $100 for protecting the property with which I was entrusted. They could find no law to enforce. I have since then been in the hands of the rebels. They have taken the country through which they have passed. It is known that they have not kept up the pay of the men. We have had regular receipts for our taxes, but they have been killed and merchandise taken. The receipt for the fine gave the details of the case. They were to be paid in the event of the success of the revolution."

First Company Raided.

Geo. A. Laird, manager of the Candalaria company, of San Pedro, Chihuahua, said:

"Our officials are the same as the Corralitos. I know the American Payne Whitney, Dudley Winthrop estate are interested. The capitalization is $1,000,000. This was the first company raided by the Maderistas. They made demands upon our company for arms and ammunition. This was the Madero revolution. We had 1000 employees and 875 were Mexicans. They asked for volunteers and two went."

"I was asked for money for protection except the taxes. I evaded the state taxes and paid the federal taxes to the Mexican government. The rebels have looted the store of goods and dynamite, horses, mules, saddles and anything they wanted. They looted the camp last Thursday with 800 federal soldiers four miles away. No demands were made upon me for money."

"The motives of the revolutions were to get away with Diaz and then Madero. That desire is general through Chihuahua."

"There has been a decided change toward Americans, due to the fact that they know the American government will do nothing and individuals cannot."

Question—"Were the changed conditions toward Americans coincident with the passing of the law prohibiting importation of the arms?"

A. "I have heard the Americans in the eyes of the Maderistas and Orozcos."

Cananea Allowed Ammunition.

"The American Smelting company has suffered less than others, but not because of favoritism. Cananea has not been molested. From newspaper reports, I believe that they have been allowed to take in ammunition. Mr. Houghton has made a request to have the men to go through Columbus or Hachita armed."

"As far as I know, no special favors have been granted to any companies. I know that the American government was allowed to take in arms and ammunition."

"I think that the revolution is much stronger than the Madero government. Life has not been threatened, but they have said they would kill some to bring on intervention. Americans were told by Salazar to get out. He made a speech at Casas Grandes in this effect. He said at San Pedro that he would no longer protect the Americans lives or property. We have had no assurances from the Madero government of protection."

Question—"Who financed the Madero revolution?"

Answer: "Madero put up a certain amount of money."

Question—"Have you heard that this money was collected, borrowed or offered in the United States?"

Answer: "No. As far as I know neither revolution was financed in the United States."

Question—"Do you think the propaganda started in the United States?"

Answer: "Yes, in the juntas allowed to operate. The Cananea riots started by the men who afterward were in the Madero revolution. These juntas were later in El Paso."

"I do not think that American capital or people have assisted. I know that Salazar was in El Paso and I can bring young Mexicans who knew the revolution would start. I knew that the Madero revolution was going to start two months before Madero was later in El Paso."

"I know of no American citizen or corporations who contributed voluntarily to either revolution. I have heard it denied that the Standard Oil financed the Madero revolution. I do not believe it as I buy oil cheaper in the United States and oil men tell me that the money is made in lubricating oil. I can buy oil cheaper in Cleveland than in Tampico."

George Look Testifies.

George Look, ranch owner at Casas Grandes, said: "The report of the financing of the revolutions is not true. I have had no protection whatever during the past six weeks. Our worst trouble was Taft's proclamation, telling Americans to come out. Since then there has been a change of feeling. They have taken the attitude that no one will back us up. I had a gun poked in my ribs. I was told to get out. The American National bank sent large sums of money down there to finance the revolution."

Gough Was a Prisoner.

David Gough, mining engineer of Durango, said: "I have spent one-half of my time in Mexico. I was taken prisoner in the state of Durango. They beat me with a rifle and demanded 2000 pesos. I gave them nothing, but they took my pocket money. They said if I did not give them they would shoot me. The man who beat me was Sproano Trun, a captain under Arguedo. Bonnick and Smith were with me when I was robbed. He made similar demands upon other residents. I don't think they were complied with. I don't think there is any other object in the revolution but loot. There is no discipline. No Americans were with them. All were Mexicans. The Indian Gold Mining company was held up for money. They opened their safe. Also the Guadalupe Mining company at Inde. As a rule they asked for from 5000 to 10,000 pesos. Mr. McCort opened his safe after he was lined up to be shot. They gave him nothing."

"I know of no demands made upon the officers. I was promised protection by the rebels. I would give them 2000 pesos. While they did not get the money, they protected us. I was not to allow the federalists to use our mine railways."

The Inde company asked for protection at Washington. They told me that if I made a request for protection they would shoot me. Gen. Blanquet drove the rebels from the Inde company, but they returned. They have been asking for money all the time. They have taken everything they could carry."

H. Watkins, of Scranton, Pa., is president. C. D. Simpson is the vice president.

"These rebels were well armed and all arms and ammunition were federal (Mexican) equipment. I know that they are not forgers for I know them. I think that this is a campaign of loot. I talked with federal army officers and they are all against Madero. I think the revolution is more formidable. They told me that they had no consideration for Americans. The reason was that Madero had been allowed to bring in arms in his revolution and continued to help him."

Adjournment For Lunch.

After the testimony of engineer David Gough, the investigation was adjourned for lunch and senator Smith accompanied mayor C. E. Kelly and James G. McNary to lunch at the Sheldon.

In the afternoon the hearing was resumed at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Joshua Stevens, widow of the Mormon killed near Pachuca, called to testify. The investigation will continue indefinitely as senator Smith says that he will continue until he has exhausted all possible sources of information. He has a man at work making secret investigations here in order to develop possible sources of information for investigation.

It is possible that senator Albert B. Fall will return to El Paso the first of next week to participate in the investigation. He was to have met senator Smith at Los Angeles but the Michigan senator stopped here to start the investigation instead of going to California.

Senator Smith, as chairman of the committee on naval affairs of the senate, conducted the Titanic investigation which was held in New York and Washington following the sinking of the great ocean liner. He directed the entire investigation and made the report of the committee to the senate.
